

ESTABLISHED NATURAL AREAS IN OREGON AND WASHINGTON

OPPORTUNITIES FOR RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

NATURAL AREAS DESIGNATED FOR RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

Through a cooperative effort between federal, state and private organizations, 182 natural areas have been established in Oregon and Washington. These areas protect naturally occurring physical or biological units where natural conditions are maintained insofar as possible. Natural areas serve as a baseline for comparison with similar areas influenced by humans, as sites for ecological and environmental study, and as reserves to protect typical as well as rare and endangered organisms. The availability of baseline ecological information, and the areas' protected status, make them ideal sites for long-term research and educational projects.
